TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

This serves to advise that Ms. Lydia Tulloch-Dehee has supported this Embassy in its efforts to promote awareness in Germany of the diversity of Jamaican culture.

In particular, she partnered with the Embassy in 2008 in organizing a successful art exhibition commemorating the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Abolition of the Slave Trade. This was done in collaboration with the University of the West Indies in Jamaica, the National Gallery of Jamaica and the Nelson Mandela International School in Berlin. The exhibition was complemented by workshops at the school with the visiting Jamaican artists.

With a keen interest in art projects, Ms. Tulloch-Dehee undertook this initiative highly motivated, demonstrating a strong sense of purpose and commitment. She worked independently as well as with a team, coordinating the various elements of the exhibition and followed through to ensure that the objectives were successfully realized.

Ms. Tulloch-Dehee was hardworking, courteous, and pro-active and should have no difficulty in undertaking assignments of a similar nature.
